

Artist Barbara Keller

Barbara has been a part of Island Art Gallery since 2014 and has been furthering her knowledge of oil painting ever since. “Right now,” she says “everything is a learning experience. I will often choose a subject because I’ve never done it before. I usually work wet on wet because of the wonderful blending effects you can achieve.” Barbara leans toward a strong color palette and a realistic approach. “Art is an evolving process” she says “so I can’t predict how I’ll paint five years from now. To see more of Barbara’s work you can visit her website at: :http://barbarakellerfineart.com/works. Barbara now resides in Myrtle Beach having lived most of her life in Trumbull, CT.

